this berry for five years, and gives it the following character: It is a strong, thrifty, stordy grower, but strong as it lected during growing time and after ward shortened in full one-half, they bear such enormous crops that frequently the plants will lie on the ground. in vigor and stockiness and hardmess of plant, unfailing and unequalled fruittulness, it stands first. In an exportence of over twenty years with all the popular kinds of blackberries, I have never seen any that would produce onebalf as much, even after a mild winter when the more tender kinds were in good condition. It has now been before the public twenty-six years, and where persons are fortunate enough to get the genuine Snyder, it receives only praise. No one speaks ill of it, and I have no doubt that it is more important and profitable as a black berry than the Richmond as a cherry, the Wilson's Albany as a strawberry, the Concord as a grape, or any other leading representative fruit whatever, to its family, to my knowledge. I think it would be well for every one first to try the Snyder, betore trying any unknown kind, whatey er its pretensions. THE TOMATO. - As the season for this delicious and universally appreciated vegetable is again approaching, a word about its first introduction to notice and use is not inopportune. The tomate, or "love apple," as it was first cilled, was originally knowears comcalled, was originally knowers com-aren in Italian cookery. In 1803 it was grown at Detroit and Fort Wayne, by a man by the name of Col. Hamtenmak, and in 1507 it was grown by Judge Thomas, in Lawrenceburg, Indiana.-The French stewed it at Kaskoskia in 1807, probably obtained from Taomas, and about that period it was brought. into Ohio. In 1817 it was a salad or dressing for beef, or roast steak, in tal plant under the mane of love apple.

And even in Bristol, England, ia 1855, it was grown as a flowering plant, its deep crimson-colored fruit being counted gens of great beauty. But how is it now? No meal is considered complete, and no table properly set, unless it is mentally in the control of the properly set, unless it is mentally in the control of the properly set, unless it is mentally in the control of the properly set, unless it is mentally in the control of the properly set, unless it is mentally in the control of the properly set. Wallingford, Connecticut, It was graced with a dish of tomatoes, done up-RICE FOR YOUNG UNICKERS, - In ome localities it is difficult to get young chicks through the first two weeks afer they are hatched; for the little complaints of this early period are often none numerous and critical than at any other period of their lives. Fred is the other period of their lives. Fred is the first consideration, and once water a great essential for them from least to hast. Commeal is the one article of the problem of th gir handful at a feed for the hen and her brood. An inferior quality, known to the trade as broken rice, is just us go d for feed, and it takes so little for a feed that the expense is no greater in the northern states than cornmeal, while in the south it will be the cheapest feed known - Lauruster Farmer, Colorino Burren, A Pennsylvanit correspondent of the Elmira Farmers' Club, writes, under date of

May 8 h;
"I c m see no harm in coloring buffer with some harmless material if the consumer desires it, which I think must be the cases some of my sales have shown last spring I sent my buffer to a New Regland market. The first shipment consisted of two tubs; one was colored, the other was not; the quality of the buffer was able in other respects; the colored sold for two cents more perpound. I have been selling my buffer the last few weeks to go in prints to the some market. The person who has it knowed it is colored, and turnishing the material to do it with."

CRYING AND GROANING IN SICK. greating in pain are set forth by a Themes physician who holds that these media of expression me nature's own method of subdiving the keenness of playsand suffering. He would have men fields avail themselves of this means or tempting their sensibility during surgied operations. Crying in children should not be repressed, for according to this an hority such repressions may I sult in very serious consequences, es St. Vitus' dance, epileptic ilts, etc.
